A Word

Now and then spoken in sincerity never comes amiss. It is the ambition of every merchant or business man to increase the volume of his trade from year to year, and in order to do this he must study closely the wants of his patrons. First, he must have goods suitable to all classes of trade. Second, he must have a large variety of each class, and third, he must give the best possible values for the money paid him. There may be claimed to be the three leading attributes of the successful merchant. Then the question for the purchaser to decide is: Who of all engaged in trade in my own town and county make these attributes a leading affiliation in their business?

In the first, Saur & Balsley aim to carry a stock suitable to all classes of trade, the poor as well as the rich, each and every one, is treated alike.

In the second, Saur & Balsley can prove to you beyond a doubt, that they carry a larger assortment than any other house in the great Northwest.

In the third, Saur & Balsley guarantee to give you as good, if not better values for money expended than most merchants can afford to do.

Summing up the whole matter, you can see at once that this is the house to visit and invest with, as they give you the best value for your money, the largest variety to select from, and a positive guarantee as to what you purchase, all goods being just as represented.

In conclusion, Saur & Balsley would say, when you are seeking remedies for relief, or that which will add beauty and comfort to your home, or food for the mind, or articles to make the hearts of friends glad, or those hundred and one things which go to add to the attractiveness and healthfulness of the form divine, call upon them, get the best for the least money, thereby benefitting yourselves and family.

Saur & Balsley's clearance sale in some classes of goods is now going on and you can get goods almost at your own price. It will be well to call on them.

FIRST OF THE YEAR!

Grand Leap Year Hop Given by the Young Ladies of Napoleon.

The Elite, the Beauty and the Aristocracy of the town in Glorious Phantasmagoria of Fashionable Swirl.

No Cards, no Admission—Stags left on the curb to Congeal into Frigid Rigidity in the cold January Air.

Full Particulars by our Special Correspondent.

Last Thursday night witnessed the most pleasant event of the year. The young ladies of Napoleon—ever progressive and appreciative of the kindness shown them by their gentlemen friends—showed this appreciation by assuming a dignified and material form. Leap year was instituted by a special act of the Ohio Legislature for women, and especially for young women.

"Cut loose the Gordian Knot of restraint. Fling out the silken robes of Independence and Self-Choice!" as it stands on the statute books, to be closely observed every fourth year of the calendar.

Are you invited to the Leap Year, John? Are you Arkie? Are you? No. What leap year? Ah! I haven't been to the post office. I don't dance, etc., etc., were more common remarks on our streets just previous to the dance. But a wicked light gleamed in the eyes of the disappointed, and an inward resolve "to get even" manifested itself in their sour visages.

Refreshments? You smile. Do the boys have refreshments at their club dances? Railroad sandwiches, ice water and saps of fresh air on the balcony?

Refreshments! Let us articulate. Terapin, canvas-back duck and boiled cabbage, shrimp salad a la Francaise, Blue point oysters, celery and bean soup with vinegar, apple jelly, vanilla ice cream and potatoes, boiled corn, etc., etc., were the variety of dainties, (the latter of a non-ecological kind.) These constituted but the initial variety, while the side dishes and dessert were simply too numerous to mention. Shanteau! Avant Delmonio!

The girls got there! How? Walk? No much. The summer costumes of the gentlemen would not fraternize with the fresh January breezes. The omnibus, the only one in the city, was pressed into service. The cold piercing winds of the north whistled shrill accompaniment to chattering teeth. The world was full of falling snow, but still the boys on, still they came; and this is who came:

Lallah Hogue and Willie P. Tyler, Marie Humphrey and Debbie D. Haag, Alta Myer and Hiram VanCampen, Jr., Mary Haag and Josie Blackman, Nettie Cooper and Al Thiesen, Julia Fouke and Frostie Fick, Lillian VanHuyning and Andy Sherman, (too bad too bad!), Fannie Knapp and Charlie Harrison, Mrs. Lillian Tyler and Mr. Julius Thiesen, Emma Groschner and Charlie Haag, Mary Richards and Frankie Ulrich, Eddie Scribner and Eddie Stuckman Allen, Lettie Martin and Charlie Jackson, Carrie Bloomfield and Nettie Martin, Jennie Fouke and Eddie Winesland, Mary Randall and Freddie Haag, Mary Haag and O. Stave, Thersa Bernstein and brother Julius Bernstein, Mr. C. Van Hynning and Mr. Chas. Van Hynning, Mrs. A. E. Augenstein and Mr. A. E. Augenstein, Gusto Groschner and Jimmie Shanteau, Jr., and Mr. Stephen Bissonet. From Defiance, Mrs. and Mr. Kittner.

Among the most beautifully dressed and most elegant costumes were the following: Willie P. Tyler, red trousers with suspenders, No. 12-14, inch collar, cream colored shirt, and a velvet crushed pumpkin vest; flowers but no jewelry.

Jebbie Haag, high water trousers, white stockings, no suspenders, and lay down collar; ragged edged christenthums and budding sun flowers. Diamonds.

Al Thiesen, regulation ready-made suit, full dress, regulation.

Charlie Hagne, no vest, ruffled shirt, false bosom, Elizabethan collar and old gold colored neck tie. Carnations and heliotrope; buckeye ear rings, no imitation.

Al Thiesen, Prince Albert coat, full breasted behind, white duck trousers and hair a la pompadour.

Hiram VanCampen, Jr., drab trouser and pen jacket, flesh-colored hose without shoes; full beard, chrome yellow; diamond tiara in head gear. Flowers in abundance.

Of the ladies, but few exceptions to the stereotyped regulation ball costumes.

Marie Humphrey, salmon colored silk, tulle skin gloves and hair a la mode nikado; flowers and diamonds.

Lallah Hogue, black velvet, point lace, patterned gloves; no cosmetics but straight and down behind in wavy folds. Primroses and forget-me-nots; diamonds, solitaire.

Nettie Cooper, white silk, entraine with veil of tulle a la bridesmaid. Heavy shoes with spikes to keep from falling; lace gloves with wristlets, chestnut braids and jump-jumps; Lake George diamonds and bone ear rings.

Gusto Groschner, fur beaver traveling dress, Japanese collar and plough share shoes with silver buckles. Flowers and diamonds.

Although perhaps not absolutely correct, the above detailed account embraces pretty well the great social event just passed. With an exceptionally good time was had. The young ladies have our thanks.

INFIRMARY NOTES.

Visitors.—The Misses Mason, Miss Jennie Ragan, John Ricker, Mr. and Mrs. Thrapp.

A bit of amusement crops out here and there in other parts of the world. George Miller "don't give a cent for the Reston, Sheriff or Constable, sure as lightning struck you." Was has to have his chips "so his system won't break down." Sometimes the inmates use a great deal of ingenuity to get their whims and caprices satisfied. The following is a fair example: Some time ago a man at this place by the name of Walter Pitcher, (almost blind), was troubled a deal with sour stomach. He stated that Vodka and black pepper was a specific for this ailment. He went in and stated his case to the Matron; she, always kind hearted and sympathetic, satisfied his craving. This he repeated for five consecutive mornings, getting his Vodka. On the sixth morning the Supt. going his rounds, stepped into the men's sitting room, Pitcher approached him and said, "I have a fair example of your medicine in my stomach as it is wishing to excite the sympathy of Conrad. He was told that he had got a drink for the last five mornings, and that was not doing that kind of business. Pitcher resumed his place in the corner to study out the problem of his life. A few days after this, as we were at the pump, the Supt. came by and curiously remarked that he guessed he had busted up the sour stomach business, as he had never heard him complain of sour stomach since.

A Day and Two Nights on Girty's Island.

BY C. THOMPSON.

It is but a short time since that a party of convivial spirits having imbibed a sort of contempt for the immediate surroundings and conveniences of our own beautiful town, resolved to try the old-time luxury of camping out on that beautiful site called Girty's Island, for a few days.

Having procured the boats necessary to transport ourselves and stores, (said stores consisting mostly of boxes marked "Ferdinand" and warranted twelve bottles to the dozen.)

Everything being on board, it was suggested by some one that a reporter be selected to note all points of interest along the route, and it was decided that for this purpose, what is called a carte blanche, which being interpreted means that he be allowed to draw on his memory for his anecdotes, and his imagination for his facts. Your reporter having had some experience in the pioneer business, was selected for this purpose.

As we swung out into the river from the old ferry landing below the bridge and as we pass up the river we can not fail to notice that from this bridge some fine views are obtained, as we cast our eyes to the West at this time, on the sun is slowly sinking in the Western horizon.

As we pass from under the bridge the first object that meets the eye is a structure, the formations and surroundings seem to indicate it to be a source of great material wealth, and it is a source of great material wealth, and it is a source of great material wealth.

As we pass along the river, the style of construction, seem to carry one back to the style in vogue in the days of the great Condo.

The next object is the towering grist mill. This structure seems to deserve more than a passing notice. This building was constructed in an early day by a man of true nobility of soul, a man to whose philanthropic views of life many a friendless emigrant as he views his broad and well tilled acres to-day, can thank for the timely assistance he received in his time of greatest need.

Next in relation comes the woolen factory. This industry is mighty and far reaching. Connected with this and kindred industries, is the problem so difficult to solve. It was in a factory of this kind many years ago that objects were made made the custom of working by candle light, alleging as a reason that the light of heaven was enough for any man. This idea has spread, and it has almost become a law that a man should not work at all unless he gets ten hours pay for eight hours work.

We next pass a structure called a planing mill. We here see the practical working of that subtle element called the brain of man. Here are to be found inventions aided by the United States Patent Office, that does the work of a hundred men, while it can do the voting for one.

We next find ourselves passing a building, that reminds us of the Angel in the Book of Revelations, who is standing with one foot on the sea and the other on dry land; the difference is that this structure is standing with one side on the river and the other on the canal. On making inquiry for the proprietor we find that he is gone on a journey that will take him three years to go and three years to come back again. Meantime business is going on as usual, for the old stand as usual, for ready pay only.

Passing on we see nothing but a few huts, the main features of which seem to be that the owners are on a Rip Vanwinkle sleep, but will probably be on hand once in a while.

As we pass along the next object of interest to draw our attention is what seems to be the largest foot hole that we ever saw. On our calling the attention of our friends to the fact that the foot hole of the law, who sat by our side, that this hole was only a few inches from the water mark had shown our friends the law of self preservation than is always shown by the human biped. Our well meant ascription on the sagacity of the fox was received with shouts of derision, and we were quietly informed by a kind of law, who sat by our side, that this hole was only a few inches from the water mark had shown our friends the law of self preservation than is always shown by the human biped.
